To Whom It May Concern:

In response to your request for my fee structure, in employment/discrimination cases the total cost of an analytical report exclusively in terms of damages usually runs about $1,800 to $2,000 per plaintiff if little extra library work is required. Where my involvement requires statistical research (for example in disparate treatment issues), I charge my hourly rate. My depositions are $1,250 for preparation and the first hour with the regular hourly rate applying thereafter for any full or part hours, if the deposition is given in my Bordeaux Street office, with a minimum deposition charge of $1,250.00. Otherwise I bill depositions the same as any other consulting time ($585.00 per hour), with a $950 minimum. Trial testimony is a minimum of $1,750.00 (for preparation and courtroom time up to the equivalent hourly time), and is at the hourly rate after that. Naturally, time and expenses for travel, etc. are over and above the rates quoted.

In listing potential witnesses, I suggest that you include not only me but also Dan M. Cliffe, CPA, John R. Page, CPA, Ph.D. and J. Stuart Wood, Ph.D. (the latter only when we are retained by defendants), and John R. Page. They testify in my place on occasion when live testimony is required outside of the New Orleans area.

Sincerely,

Kenneth J. Boudreaux, Ph.D.
